

Longleaf Wilderness Medicine Wilderness Medicine Course Scholarship

Purpose

Longleaf Wilderness Medicine is committed to supporting the local communities in which it operates. To provide community support, LWM offers a number of scholarships each year. Scholarships are intended for individuals who will benefit from the course and who would be unable to participate without financial assistance.

Application

Written applications are accepted through US Post Office or electronically. To be considered for scholarship the following information must be provided in the application:

1. Which course (type, date, and location) are you interested in and how will it benefit you professionally or personally?
2. If you were to receive a course scholarship, how would you use the new information to improve your community?
3. Provide the amount of your award request and identify the reason/financial need for a scholarship.

Submission

Submission can be made through the US Post Office or electronically.

Email info@longleafmedical.com

US Post Longleaf Wilderness Medicine
 PO Box 1616
 Sandpoint, ID 83864

Review

Applications are reviewed by a group of LWM staff and advisors who work to provide award information no more than one week post scholarship application. All personal information in the application is kept confidential.